CHANCELLOR'S LETTER

We stand in awe of your incredible gifts of $114.6 million during fiscal year 2013, extending beyond the $100 million mark for the second consecutive year. University of Mississippi alumni and friends are known for fierce loyalty and a deeply held commitment to academics, research, health and well-being, service and athletics. Perhaps more than any other year, this year reflected your visionary support. Our university is attracting the largest number of students at any Mississippi public university and exhibiting tremendous growth, and we have secured our place among prominently respected institutions in national higher education circles. These achievements have evolved from our provision of extraordinary experiences for our students, faculty, researchers and staff, and you are assuring critical resources are available to press on in this constant pursuit of excellence.

By choosing UM in historic numbers, individuals are validating our flagship university as one of America's academic leaders, an incredible value, a place to connect with great careers, a collegiate experience admired coast to coast, and an environment to pursue significant innovation, discoveries and service. The trust placed in this university across our campuses, classrooms, laboratories and playing fields is a great honor that we proudly share with you, our donors. Your gifts provide the fuel to help us to continually produce the exceptional triumphs, breakthroughs and graduates you have come to expect from your university.

This Annual Report on Philanthropy celebrates the 40th anniversary of the University of Mississippi Foundation, which had as its first significant gift a $2 million scholarship loan fund and now manages a $520 million endowment for our institution's intellectual and financial health. The report also highlights private support to the Oxford and regional campuses, the University of Mississippi Medical Center and Ole Miss Athletics. We are one university achieving great successes, with many more mountains to scale. Your support is a constant source of inspiration, propelling us forward. Thank you.

Daniel W. Jones, M.D.

Chancellor

Stirring

INSPIRING

You, our donors, are inspiring a remarkable era at the University of Mississippi. Your gifts are key to the university fulfilling its destiny as a prominent center of higher learning excellence. There are 4,000 universities and colleges across the United States, but there is only one University of Mississippi.

For the second year, your contributions propelled overall gifts past the $100 million mark at $114.6 million, with this year's cash gifts surpassing $95 million. You set a record in athletics contributions at $26 million, a 33 percent increase over 2012.

"Whether supporting a research program at our health science center in Jackson, a scholarship for a public policy student in Oxford, support for our dedicated faculty or our nationally competitive athletics programs, our donors are moving us forward," UM Chancellor Dan Jones said.

Enrollment has soared, stretching resources and increasing the value of private support. For fall 2013, the university enrolled 22,286 students across its campuses — the most of any Mississippi university and featuring the largest freshman class in the state's history. A recent study by The Chronicle of Higher Education ranked UM first among the state's public colleges and universities in terms of student completion, measured by four- and six-year graduation rates.

Your gifts make possible scholarships and opportunities that help individuals realize their dreams; they also strengthen faculty development, assuring students are taught by outstanding professors. Other support goes to operating capital for cornerstone programs including the Sally McDonnell Barksdale Honors College and the Croft Institute for International Studies.

All gifts make a positive impact. Consider these examples:

Scholarship — The Stamps Family Charitable Foundation of Atlanta, Ga., and UM offer some of the nation's top scholarships. Valued between $98,000 and $138,000 each, the Stamps Leadership Scholarships have become UM's most comprehensive, full scholarship packages, including a $12,000 stipend for educational pursuits outside the classroom.

Public Accounting Report ranked the UM Patterson School of Accountancy's undergraduate program as No. 4 in the nation. The master's and doctoral programs are ranked No. 5 and No. 8 in their respective categories, making all three the highest ranked accountancy programs in the Southeastern Conference.

Research — The MIND Center, or Center for Memory Impairment and Neurodegenerative Dementia Research, at the University of Mississippi Medical Center uses research to crack the code of dementia and Alzheimer's. Headquarters for one of the largest and most comprehensive studies on vascular risk factors for dementia, the center's researchers collaborate with scientists at Mayo Clinic, Johns Hopkins and University of Texas.

More than a third of Americans are obese, increasing their risk of diseases. The Mississippi Center for Obesity Research at the Medical Center leads the state's efforts to better understand, treat and prevent obesity and related conditions.

Achievement — Dr. Hannah Gay, a Medical Center pediatrics professor, remains in the international spotlight after being credited with the functional curing of an HIV-infected child. TIME magazine named the HIV specialist to its 2013 list of the 100 most influential people in the world.

UM enjoyed monumental success in athletics. The men's basketball team captured the Southeastern Conference Championship, the football team won the BBVA Compass Bowl, track and field athletes broke records and took an NCAA title, and men's tennis broke into the Final Four.

Service — UM and Mississippi State University joined to build an honors college-type program to attract the best and brightest students to the field of education and produce teachers for the state's schools. The Mississippi Excellence in Teaching Program received $12.9 million in support from the Robert M. Hearn Support Foundation in Jackson, Miss.

Your investments are inspiring outstanding preparation of students and fueling life-changing innovation and discoveries through research, while producing great achievements and expanding a service legacy. Millions of college graduates and supporters across the country give to their universities, but only one deeply loyal group of benefactors chooses to make a difference through our university. We are all inspired by what the University of Mississippi family can achieve together.

Galvanizing

THANKING MAJOR DONORS

Major gifts and pledges in fiscal year 2013 are strengthening the University of Mississippi, the University of Mississippi Medical Center and Ole Miss Athletics. Your inspiring support allows the university community to seek and provide excellence in scholarship, research, achievement and service. University of Mississippi Foundation

UM FOUNDATION BOARD CHAIR'S LETTER

Four decades ago, visionary leadership at the University of Mississippi guided the formation of a foundation and started educating alumni and friends about the need for private gifts to strengthen our academic community. The willingness of alumni and friends to provide this support is clearly visible in the growth of the UM Foundation from its first $2 million to today's endowment of more than $520 million. Donors have infused tremendous resources into the state's flagship university; your gifts have made bold statements about your belief in this university's responsibility and ability to educate young people and make a positive difference.

With each gift made over the past 40 years, we have become a stronger university and a closer Ole Miss family. Our successful history has proven over and over that when we collectively focus our commitment, generosity and energies on Ole Miss, the results are spectacular — just take a drive around our stunning campus, read about the achievements of our students, feel pride in the work of faculty, appreciate the discoveries of researchers, benefit from improved health care, and enjoy an Ole Miss Athletics event. We have done all of this together.

By making giving part of our footprints, we are also setting an example for the generations who will follow. As we encourage young people to take advantage of outstanding educational opportunities found here and introduce them to all the aspects of Ole Miss that we treasure, we must also pass on the value of supporting this trusted institution and investing in the power of education.

Thank you for giving. Thank you for believing. Thank you for coming together to help the University of Mississippi reach a level of national prominence. Let's pause to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the UM Foundation and then go forward with even larger goals and dreams in mind.

Charles Cannada
Chairman, UM Foundation Board

STRENGTHENING THE OLE MISS FAMILY

40 Years of the University of Mississippi Foundation

This year, the University of Mississippi Foundation celebrated four decades of diligence in building a strong foundation for the University of Mississippi. Years of cultivating support have encouraged alumni and others to help open doors for students and faculty to come and thrive at Ole Miss, growing and shaping our Ole Miss family.

It began in 1973, when a $2 million endowed scholarship loan fund raised academic and financial assistance to a new level. This gift provided a path to higher education for countless students, showing what was possible at UM through generosity and purpose. People like you took notice and, one by one, helped lay the groundwork, for bright, enthusiastic UM students to chart their path toward excellence.

Through their strong leadership, four visionary chancellors — Porter Fortune, Gerald Turner, Robert Khayat and Dan Jones — gained the Ole Miss family's trust and enabled ambitious fundraising for UM. The 1982 Campaign for Ole Miss' $25 million goal for academics was met with an astounding $41 million in private gifts, while the Drive for Athletics surpassed its $8 million goal with $10 million raised. In 1994, the Commitment to Excellence Campaign announced a goal of $200 million. When a total of $525.9 million was raised, people across the nation began to take notice of the momentum building at the University of Mississippi.

"Generosity, devotion and confidence from donors allowed us to establish a strategy for improving resources at our great university, and also the means to do so," said Don Frugé, who served as foundation executive director from 1984 to 1989 when he was named vice chancellor for development. In 1998, Frugé became the UM Foundation's founding president and CEO, guiding university investments until 2005. "From the beginning, our chancellors have had a dedicated group of benefactors who truly wanted to help, and that tradition continues today. These collective efforts create and expand what makes this the state's flagship university — our leading academic programs, outstanding faculty and staff, research centers and student scholarship opportunities — and ensure we can continue to reach higher and achieve more."

In this recent era, we have accomplished great deeds.

Uplifting

Private giving increased academic scholarships from $7.4 million in 2003 to $11.3 million in 2013, now serving 3,182 students. This support is essential as 76 percent of Ole Miss undergraduates receive academic or need-based scholarships, grants or loans. By stepping forward to create academic and athletics scholarships, you enable more students to attend college or graduate school and increase UM's capacity to recruit top scholars and student-athletes.

Scholarship

The Oxford campus has built strong programs attracting the best students. The Sally McDonnell Barksdale Honors College offers the benefits and support of a small liberal arts school combined with vast resources for research and study. Our Chinese Language Flagship Program is one of only nine such programs in the nation, producing graduates who can confidently participate in global trade and policy. Likewise, the Croft Institute for International Studies prepares graduates for international careers in business, foreign service and humanitarian affairs. The Center for the Study of Southern Culture and the Southern Foodways Alliance continue to receive acclaim for their documentaries and exploration of the relationships between our culture and its passions, especially food. The MFA creative writing program was named Atlantic Monthly's "Top Five Up and Coming Programs" and Poets & Writers' "Top Fifty MFA Programs." Meanwhile, our School of Pharmacy remains top 10 nationally in external funding and maintains the longest-running contract with the National Institutes of Health.

Expanding Our Reach

With 2,900 students, 600 graduate residents and fellows, and 28 degree programs, the University of Mississippi Medical Center is consistently on the forefront of medical training and research. 2013 was an exceptional year for UMMC, graduating a record 681 physicians, dentists, nurses, allied health professionals and graduate students, unveiling new early liver disease detection software developed by a UMMC radiologist and initiating a new $70 million-plus School of Medicine building.

MINOR HALL

Fueling

UM donors support our faculty as well. Faculty on the Oxford and regional campuses grew from 587 to 848 in the past 10 years, more than a 44 percent increase. UMMC saw a 60 percent increase, growing from 618 faculty in 2003 to 992 today. Endowed chairs and professorships have enabled UM and UMMC to recruit and retain the top minds that helped us achieve high standing and awards for numerous programs of study. Added to other sizeable, unrestricted gifts for faculty support, you are ensuring our students are mentored and held to high standards by experts in their fields.

Athletics

Student-athletes are excelling on the field and in the classroom, attaining a 75 percent or better graduation rate over the past three years. While winning bowls and championships, earning titles and breaking records, 14 teams posted multiyear academic progress rate (APR) scores above the national average for Division I, and four teams achieved a perfect 1,000 score. Forty-five percent of the university's 376 student-athletes earned a 3.0 cumulative GPA or better per semester, while 26 achieved a perfect 4.0.

Private Giving Pays Off

Your gifts bring new students to the Ole Miss family, but it doesn't end there. Your gifts facilitate support programs that keep students striving for their best:

- Tutoring Support: The FedEx Academic Support Center for student-athletes provides round-the-clock academic tutoring, thanks to the FedEx Corp. and other generous donors.
- Mentoring and Guidance: The Ole Miss Women's Council, Ole Miss First and Luckyday scholarship programs offer mentoring, leadership development and critical-skills training, helping students adapt for academic success.
- Enriched Living Experiences: Luckyday Residential College and Residential College South infuse learning and academic support into every aspect of students' daily routines.
- Community Service: Service learning is highly emphasized and cultivates not only graduates but also "citizen scholars." The Sally McDonnell Barksdale Honors College requires community service hours of its students, while UMMC's School of Dentistry partnered with the Mississippi Dental Association to provide 1,300 patients free dental care at an annual event. Participants in the McLean Institute for Public Service and Community Engagement's College Corps program serve 300 hours per year with organizations that tutor elementary students, fight poverty and feed those in need.

CLASS OF 2000

- Teaching: The Mississippi Excellence in Teaching Program, funded by the Robert M. Hearin Foundation, offers elite scholarships to top high school students to earn education degrees and teach in Mississippi. The Barksdale Reading Institute, Mississippi Principal Corps and Mississippi Teacher Corps, with enormous support from James L. Barksdale, have helped some of the state's poorest school districts. More than 450 MTC graduates serve in disadvantaged school districts, benefiting 80,000 students. Among the program's successes was helping the North Panola School District rise from "Failing" to "Successful" on state testing.

How is UM able to accomplish so much? Through the gifts you have given, one by one, dollar by dollar.

Milestones

But your gifts don't just bring students and faculty to campus; they enrich our lives and our communities, culturally and with historical significance. Through extraordinary gifts, we have added new facilities enhancing the collegiate experience. The Gertrude C. Ford Center for the Performing Arts hosts speakers, performances and events, made possible by the Gertrude C. Ford Foundation and other patrons. Perhaps the most memorable was in 2008, when UM donors and Mississippi business leaders rallied to help fund the university's first Presidential Debate, showcasing our university on a national stage.

At UMMC, the Memory Impairment and Neurodegenerative Dementia (MIND) Center, led by a nationally recognized expert in brain aging, conducts some of the largest neuro-epidemiologic studies ever undertaken, using state-of-the-art brain imaging and diagnostic studies. The Mississippi Center on Obesity Research has published more than 30 scholarly works and constructed its headquarters in the Arthur C. Guyton Research Center, which includes first-class laboratories, equipment rooms and offices.

The Haley Barbour Center for Manufacturing

Excellence, a modern, high-tech facility and multidisciplinary program combining engineering, business and accounting courses, is meeting the needs of today's students by preparing them for tomorrow's job market. Because of corporate, state and individual commitments, the CME is producing future business leaders who will help innovative industries in Mississippi and the world. Meanwhile, the new Robert C. Khayat Law Center gained Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED) certification and became one of the most technologically advanced — and most beautiful — law schools in the country.

Other branches of the Ole Miss family have helped create cornerstone programs with similarly impressive headquarters: the FIRST Robotics Program in the Center for Mathematics and Science Education, the Meek School of Journalism and New Media, and the Overby Center for Southern Journalism and Politics. Today, when many think of the University of Mississippi, these impressive programs are the first to spring to mind.

"Our donors' investments continue to show exceptional returns," said Wendell Weakley, president and CEO of the foundation. "We understand that when our alumni and friends invest in the University of Mississippi, they expect not only financial returns but also returns that demonstrate the total positive impact to Ole Miss. We thank them for their trust and look forward to showing the yields from these gifts as our students and faculty continue to achieve great things."

Forty years later, with more than 100,000 donors and an endowment exceeding $520 million, the Ole Miss family continues to grow and succeed. Day by day, alumni, friends, families, foundations and corporate partners continue working with the UM Foundation. Together we create endowments to help new generations come to UM, climb the ladder toward success and, one day, give back to the same Ole Miss family that supported them. Thank you for what you do to help us continue this legacy at the University of Mississippi.

University of Mississippi Medical Center

VICE CHANCELLOR'S LETTER

In 1965, I was a member of the University of Mississippi School of Medicine's graduating class, when just two schools were on the Medical Center campus in Jackson. Today, we host six schools that educate the health care professionals of tomorrow, and we are uniquely positioned to lead the way in scientific breakthroughs and clinical care. During my years here, I have watched history being made. This was certainly true recently, when UMMC pediatrician Dr. Hannah Gay discovered a functional cure for HIV that put our medical center in the headlines around the globe.

But that wasn't our only milestone that made the news. Our clinicians also performed the first liver transplant done here in 20 years, and we held a ceremonial groundbreaking for the first-ever dedicated School of Medicine building on our campus.

When I walk the medical center's hallways, I am reminded of the daily stories that never make the headlines: children whose lives are saved at Batson Children's Hospital, adults whose lives are improved by the care provided at our heart and cancer centers, researchers who are seeking a breakthrough in Alzheimer's and dementia at the MIND Center, or those working to eradicate obesity through our Mississippi Center for Obesity Research.

Philanthropy pushes us beyond our financial limitations to achieve the very best for the people of Mississippi. And sometimes, through a combination of talent, drive and good fortune, we surpass our expectations with landmark breakthroughs that reach beyond our state. We are proud to build on an almost six-decade strong record of accomplishment, and yet in some ways we're just getting started. I hope you feel part of our accomplishments when you hear about them. With you as our partner, we will continue to improve the health of the people in Mississippi and far beyond. Thank you for your philanthropic leadership.

James E. Keeton, M.D.
*Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs
Dean, School of Medicine*

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

UMMC to build first dedicated School of Medicine building with the help of philanthropic support

The University of Mississippi Medical Center — the state's only academic health science center and home to four specialized hospitals — improves the lives of Mississippians and countless others by educating health care professionals, conducting significant research and providing cutting-edge patient care. Even so, a critical physician shortage is found throughout the state, and medical education methods require constant updating. Take into account that since opening in 1955, little has changed spacewise for School of Medicine students attending lectures — except that more students are in those spaces. Yet class sizes must increase; otherwise, the future of health care in Mississippi will be at risk.

However, all that is about to change.

Earlier this year, the Medical Center held a symbolic groundbreaking for a new School of Medicine building that will make it possible to both increase the number of medical students and do so in a building equipped to meet the demands of the digital age. The ceremony featured Mississippi Gov. Phil Bryant, House Speaker Philip Gunn, University of Mississippi Chancellor Dan Jones and UMMC Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs and School of Medicine Dean James Keeton.

The new space will allow the School of Medicine to increase its incoming class sizes from 135 students per year to more than 165. The five-story building is scheduled for completion in 2016 and will cost more than $70 million.

"This will provide the space we need to train Mississippi's next generation of physicians," said Keeton. "This new School of Medicine facility directly addresses our mission to educate health care providers for Mississippi's vast medical needs. We're grateful to Gov. Bryant, the Mississippi Legislature and Mississippi Development Authority for recognizing how training more physicians for Mississippi will impact the state's economy, and we're pleased to continue working with the state's leadership to improve the future of health care in Mississippi."

Current School of Medicine facilities are cramped, outdated and spread among numerous sites on and off campus. The oldest are in UMMC's original 1955-era building. Without a dedicated building, students must inhabit other buildings such as the Research Wing, University Rehabilitation Center, Alumni House, VA Medical Center and Jackson Medical Mall.

She also wears a sash with the word "Miss" and some other text that is partially obscured. She has long blonde hair and is looking down at the child with a gentle expression. She is wearing a dark grey, one-shoulder dress with a subtle pattern. The child, on the left, is seen from the side, facing the woman. The child has very light blonde hair and is wearing a bright pink t-shirt. A small, colorful patch featuring a cartoon character is visible on the child's shirt. The background is slightly blurred, showing what appears to be an indoor setting with blue and white colors.

"If I told you to go to the School of Medicine, I'm sure you wouldn't know where to go," said Jerry Clark, Ph.D., the school's associate dean for student affairs. The new 151,000-square-foot building will provide state-of-the-art, flexible and technology-rich classrooms and laboratories.

UMMC projects that the larger class sizes accommodated by the new facility will generate about $1.7 billion in economic impact in Mississippi by 2025 and that the additional physicians trained will support more than 19,000 new jobs by the same year. The current economic impact of the 3,000-plus practicing UMMC-trained physicians is more than $6.3 billion annually, and those physicians are estimated to support more than 60,000 jobs in the state and increase annual tax revenue by $241 million. Not often are we presented with opportunities to contribute on such a large scale to the economic and medical benefit of an entire state.

UMMC is home to the schools of Medicine, Nursing, Dentistry and Health Related Professions, a portion of the School of Pharmacy, and the School of Graduate Studies in the Health Sciences.

"We now have 2,800 students on campus from all the schools, and they have to share space," Keeton said. "Every classroom is already crammed, and we're constantly moving students around. Also, we teach differently now. We need more space for simulation for medical students, nursing students, pharmacy students. But the simplest answer is: We need more doctors."

Changing times – a modern medical school facility

In 1987, when LouAnn Woodward, M.D., associate vice chancellor for health affairs and vice dean of the School of Medicine, entered UMMC's medical school, class size had fallen from a high of about 150 to 100 — a figure that wouldn't change for nearly two more decades.

"At that time, there was a consensus of opinion that medical schools were producing too many doctors, that the country would experience a glut,” Woodward said. Schools, including this one, began cutting classes.

But in 2003 that changed. The Association of American Medical Colleges warned that a doctor shortage loomed — because of a large aging and ailing Baby Boomer population, a rise in the ranks of retired physicians and a surge in the number of female doctors, many of whom are committed to maintaining a balance between their professional and personal lives.

“Not only are we not replacing retiring doctors at a one-to-one rate,” Woodward said, “but the new doctors also will not have the same work schedule.”

The magnitude of the problem is evident in primary care. Per capita, Mississippi has the country’s smallest supply of primary care physicians. Just to reach the national benchmark, the state would have to add to its workforce more than 1,300 of these practitioners, in addition to those being trained under the status quo.

Starting around 2005, the school cracked the admissions door a little wider, bumping up first-year classes incrementally until the total topped out at 135.

“About two years ago, we decided to hold at that number until our accreditation visit, which was completed this year,” Woodward said (in 2012). But if the class size holds at 135, it won’t be enough, she said. “Mississippi would still be last in physicians per capita.”

Changing accreditation requirements call for new teaching methods that stress small-group discussions and hands-on learning and simulations; teaching relies less and less on lectures.

“The new building is designed to allow you to work in small groups, to turn around to the person behind you for discussions,” Clark said. “It also has a group of smaller meeting rooms to replace our current so-called meeting ‘rooms,’ which include lobbies.”

Other features of the new building will include a large amphitheater, clinical skills assessment center, mock clinic, multipurpose lab and a computer lab.

“Students today must bring their own laptops to class,” Clark said. “We have no computer lab for them to use. Yet, in a few years, they’ll be taking only computerized tests.”

A close-up photograph of several graduates in black caps and gowns with green stoles and tassels. They are looking towards the left of the frame. The background is blurred.

Influencing

But for students, alumni and others emotionally linked to their medical school, new computers and clinics may not matter more than this: "A new, dedicated building would give the school something it has lost over the years: an identity," Clark said.

BUILDING HOPES

Dedicated facility would herald statewide impact

The School of Medicine is grappling with an array of space problems on the UMMC campus in Jackson. These issues jeopardize the school's ability to produce enough physicians to meet the state's medical needs and give students a modern, high-quality education that prepares them to ultimately play a leading role in improving the health of Mississippians.

A new School of Medicine building will:

- Cost $70+ million, provide 151,000 square feet of usable space and permit growth from 135 students per class to 165-170
- Consolidate most classes and labs into one building
- Offer 18 flexible, technology-rich classrooms with all-movable furnishings adaptable for lecture-style learning, teamwork sessions, small-group presentations, group discussion and other nontraditional learning methods
- Provide a dedicated floor for simulation labs where medical and other health-professions students can learn techniques with software programs and computer-controlled interactive mannequins
- Give students space for individual study, group study, congregating and socializing
- Provide large, tiered auditoriums with unobstructed views, room to work in groups, and wide desktops suitable for laptops, texts and notebooks
- Provide a computer lab where national board exams can be administered digitally
- Offer a lounge for medical students, meeting accreditation standards for larger class sizes, as well as a café and organizational spaces

Contribute to Excellence: Place your name on Mississippi's first School of Medicine building

Private support will make a difference. Be part of securing and supporting the only medical school in Mississippi. Current and legacy gifts will be honored and recognized in this new, state-of-the-art building. OLE MISS REBELS

Ole Miss Athletics Foundation

CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

On behalf of the student-athletes, coaches, staff and Ole Miss Athletics Foundation board of governors, I would like to thank you for your support. While the list of accomplishments and superlatives is long, the most gratifying aspect of the 2012-13 year was the increase in Ole Miss spirit and pride in Rebel athletics! Our pledge to create a membership program that featured simplicity, inclusiveness, stewardship and philanthropy resulted in an all-time record high year for private support to the Ole Miss Athletics Foundation. Your help, along with help from the other donors listed in this publication, raised the level of support for Rebel athletics to unprecedented heights and set the standard for the coming years. As we enter another year, we are motivated to raise the bar even higher.

Last year, your support allowed the first initiatives of the Forward Together campaign to begin with the renovation of the locker rooms, team room, weight room and dining hall at the renamed Olivia and Archie Manning Athletics Performance Center. Constant facilities improvement and growth in operating dollars are critical to the continued enhancement of our program on a national level. This year we expect to take another step toward the vision of a new basketball arena and further improvement of Vaught-Hemingway Stadium as well as other athletics facilities.

It has been an honor to serve as your foundation board chairman for the past year. None of these exciting developments would be possible without the dedicated generosity of donors like you, and for that I am humbled in representing you. Once again, we thank you and look forward to enjoying another great year in Ole Miss Athletics.

Don L. Frugé
Chairman, Board of Governors

Heartening

REBEL SPIRIT REVIVED

From Brittney Reese's Olympic gold medal, to a winning football season and Compass Bowl victory in Head Coach Hugh Freeze's first year, to a Southeastern Conference men's basketball championship and NCAA berth, Ole Miss Athletics has excelled in ways this year that have revived the spirit and energy of the Rebel Nation.

Both on and off the field, student-athletes have reached higher levels of achievement, building more pride across the university community. The flagship university of Mississippi has seen tremendous recognition nationally and beyond. There has never been a more exciting time to be a Rebel, and none of this success would be possible without you, our donors.

"The Ole Miss Athletics Foundation would like to thank its members for their ongoing allegiance to our school," said Keith Carter, executive director of the Ole Miss Athletic Foundation. "Your loyalty and generosity have sparked a movement in Ole Miss Athletics that will take our programs to the next level."

With your support, tremendous progress has been made in the Forward Together campaign, making dreams become realities. From expansion of the Olivia and Archie Manning Athletics Performance Center (formerly known as the Indoor Practice Facility), to a brand new, state-of-the-art basketball arena, to renovations of Vaught-Hemingway Stadium and the Gillom Center, student-athletes will benefit from this new stage of excellence.

This year's Annual Report recognizes your support, outlines successes and shows gifts' impact on our progress. The report also provides examples of the accomplishments that student-athletes have achieved both on and off the field and courts of play.

"2012-13 was a great year in Rebel Athletics both in the classroom and in competition," said Ross Bjork, director of athletics. "The generous support received from our donors allowed us to improve the experience for our student-athletes and develop students to their fullest potential through athletics."

Rebel Nation is consistently moving toward championships, and none of it would be possible without you. Thank you for your continued support and for helping us move Forward Together!

Exciting

FORWARD TOGETHER CAMPAIGN

The past fiscal year, the Forward Together campaign took another step forward through the expansion of the Olivia and Archie Manning Athletics Performance Center. The campaign seeks $150 million in support of a comprehensive initiative for facility construction and existing facility enhancements. During the 2012-13 fiscal year, deeply committed donors had stepped forward with nearly $20 million in gifts and pledges, and as this publication was going to print in November, the total had reached $95 million. Additionally, the Indoor Practice Facility was renamed the Olivia and Archie Manning Athletics Performance Center in honor of this Ole Miss family and its extraordinary contributions.

Campaign Details

Multipurpose Arena Initiative

- New, state-of-the-art multipurpose arena
- 9,500 seating capacity
- Private student concourse, courtside and baseline seating, and three premium club areas for other fans
- Parking garage with 800 spaces for the campus community
- Located on the west side of Vaught-Hemingway Stadium in the space currently occupied by the Rebel Shop and the parking lot

Olivia and Archie Manning

Athletics Performance Center Initiative

- New team meeting room, full-service dining facility and expansion of the weight room
- New lobby area showcasing Ole Miss football history
- Already completed: renovated locker room and a new halftime locker room
- Remaining projects to be finished in early 2014

Vaught-Hemingway Stadium Initiative

- The stadium will be enhanced with additional suites and club seats, and the “bowling in” of the north end zone.
- The north end zone expansion will create an impressive north entry point to Hollingsworth Field, forming a true connection to the historic Grove as part of our “front door” vision.
- Stadium enhancements include improvements to concourses, concessions and restrooms.

Reinforcing

Other Facility Initiatives

- The historic Starnes Center, Gillom Center and FedEx Student-Athlete Academic Support Center will be redeveloped to best serve student-athletes.
- These facilities will experience a transformation as the north end zone complex is finalized.
- More information on these facility projects will be released in the coming months.

The Ole Miss Athletic Foundation encourages all Rebel fans to support the Forward Together campaign. To learn of different ways to contribute, visit www.ForwardTogetherRebels.com.

The campaign funding model exemplifies the growing trend in college athletics to coalesce traditional methods of fundraising with innovative methods to generate revenue. Philanthropic giving combined with the introduction of Capital Gift Agreements (CGAs) accomplishes that by integrating the old with the new and providing a way for everyone to contribute to this monumental effort.

“If we’re going to improve our athletic venues, it all starts with people contributing what they can. There is no substitute for fan-based giving. It gives us all a sense of pride in knowing that we are helping build state-of-the-art facilities,” said Ben Craddock of Jackson, Miss.

A New Model of Giving

During spring 2013, the Ole Miss Athletic Foundation rebranded its identity to provide a fundraising model that was simple, philanthropic, stewardship-focused and inclusive. It encourages all Rebel fans to “give what they can.”

“With membership opportunities starting at just $50 a year, we are very excited about the annual fundraising model implemented this spring and have already begun to see positive results with increased membership and support of our student-athletes,” said Stephen Ponder, executive senior associate athletics director of external relations.

Ole Miss Athletics and the Ole Miss Athletic Foundation thank you for your continued, generous support that makes these accomplishments possible. Hotty Toddy!

ACADEMIC, ATHLETIC ACHIEVEMENTS BY SPORT

Several Rebels were named to the SEC Community Service Team for their respective sport, including Isaiah Young and Neal Tisher for men's and women's track and field, Maggie McFerrin for women's basketball and Nick Williams for men's basketball. Additionally, Rebel baseball and softball players Tanner Bailey and Brittany Broome were nominated for the Brad Davis SEC Community Service Postgraduate Scholarship.

The successes that our student-athletes have experienced this past year have demonstrated the drive for excellence they have, both on and off the field. Listed below are the many achievements made by student-athletes in each sport.
